True Americanism is the keynote of the speech which Senator Lodge delivered at Lynn, Mass. He is in the best position to criticise the adminis-tration, for on every occasion when patriotic duty called upon him to for-

The president has kept the peace but he has not kept the faith of the men who fought in the Revolution and the Civit wars, for the peace he has kept has been "clouded and darkened by humiliation and surrender." Truer words were never said than that the life of a nation de-pends not on the preservation of our individual lives, but on the preseva-tion of its ideals, and that the na-tion which abandons these is dead, 'even if its citizens live on in country whence honor, hope and as-piration have fled."

The task set before the Republican party is to bring home to the people the truth of Mr. Lodge's words and to make the principles which he sets forth the guide to its policy. Then the spirit which moved the men of Concord, Yorktown and Gettysburg will inspire the people to place men in charge of the nation's affairs who, while striving to preserve peace, will place honor first.
